Using Irregular Verbs

Understand the problem.

All verbs, whether regular or irregular, have five forms (often called principal parts). These forms are the infinitive, simple present, simple past, past participle, and present participle.

The difference between regular and irregular verbs is the formation of the simple past and past participle.

Regular verbs are dependably consistent—the simple past ends in ed as does the past participle.

Review this chart:

| Infinitive | SIMPLE Present | SIMPLE Past | PAST PARTICIPLE | PRESENT PARTICIPLE |
|------------|-------------------|----------------|--------------------|-----------------------|
| to laugh | laugh(s) | laughed | laughed | laughing |
| to start | start(s) | started | started | starting |
| to wash | wash(es) | washed | washed | washing |
| to wink | wink(s) | winked | winked | winking |

In contrast, the simple past and past participle of irregular verbs can end in a variety of ways, with no consistent pattern.

Here are examples:

| Infinitive | SIMPLE PRESENT | SIMPLE Past | PAST PARTICIPLE | PRESENT PARTICIPLE |
|------------|-------------------|----------------|--------------------|-----------------------|
| to drive | drive(s) | drove | driven | driving |
| to feel | feel(s) | felt | felt | feeling |

| to put | put(s) | put | put | putting |
|---------|---------|------|------|----------|
| to swim | swim(s) | swam | swum | swimming |

With irregular verbs, writers make two frequent errors. They either 1) add an incorrect ed to the end of the past tense or past participle or 2) confuse one form with the other.

Read this sentence:

Olivia feeled like exercising yesterday, so she putted on her bathing suit and drived to the city pool, where she swum so far that only an extra-large pepperoni pizza would satisfy her hunger.

What are the problems with this sentence? First, feeled should be felt. Next, putted needs no ed. The correct past tense of drive is drove. And we must change swum to swam.

Know the solution.

Know the difference between the simple past tense and the past participle.

In addition to learning the chart above, you must also understand the difference between the simple past tense and the past participle.

SIMPLE PAST TENSE

A simple past tense verb always has just one part. You need no auxiliary verb to form this tense.

Read these examples:

Because dinner time was near, my dog Oreo bit the spine of Moby-Dick and pulled the novel off my lap.

Since Denise had ignored bills for so long, she wrote checks for an hour straight.

Despite the noise, jolts, and jerks, Alex slept so soundly on the city bus that he missed his stop.

PAST PARTICIPLE

The past participle, on the other hand, follows one or more auxiliary verbs.

Read these sentences:

Raymond had bitten into the muffin before Charise mentioned that it was her infamous chocolate-broccoli variety.

Had = auxiliary verb; bitten = past participle.

Once Woody has written his essay for Professor Stover, he plans to reward himself with a hot fudge sundae.

Has = auxiliary verb; written = past participle.

Cynthia might have slept better if she had avoided The Nightmare on Elm Street marathon.

Might, have = auxiliary verbs; slept = past participle.

WHERE THE CONFUSION LIES

For regular verbs, knowing the distinction between the simple past and past participle is unnecessary because both are identical, reliably ending in ed.

Consider these two sentences:

Diane giggled as her beagle Reliable pushed his cold, wet nose into her stomach, searching for cookie crumbs.

Giggled = simple past.

Until the disapproving Daniela elbowed Latoya in the ribs, the young woman had giggled without stop at the toilet paper streamer attached to Professor Clemens's shoe.

Had = auxiliary verb; giggled = past participle.

When you choose an irregular verb for a sentence, however, the simple past and past participle are often different, so you must know the distinction.

Here are two examples:

Essie drove so cautiously that traffic piled up behind her, causing angry drivers to honk their horns and shout obscenities.

Drove = simple past.

Essie might have drove driven faster if she had remembered her glasses and saw more than big colored blurs through the windshield.

Might, have = auxiliary verbs; driven = past participle.

PAST PARTICIPLES AS ADJECTIVES

In addition, past participles function as adjectives, describing other words. When you use a past participle in this manner, you must choose the correct form.

Read these sentences:

The calculus exams gave given by Professor Ribley are so difficult that his students believe their brains will burst.

The leg of the relay race swam swum by Delores put the team ahead.

The solo sang sung by Bianca uplifted everyone's spirit.

Remember that you can always consult a dictionary when you have a question about the correct form of an irregular verb.
